

Our TrueMotion Ergonomics Service: A whole new way to view employee safety.

TrueMotion, powered by TuMeke, is a new ergonomics risk service that analyzes videos from your worksite to make assessing employee safety fast and easy. This service generates easy-to-view, color-coded overlays that identify motions that may cause employee injuries.

How It Works

Using a smartphone or tablet, record a video of an employee performing a job task

- Submit the video to the link provided by The Hartford

Review an easy-to-read risk analysis with your consultant

- The TuMeke software analyzes the video and generates a color-coded overlay to identify levels of risk
- Simple risk scores are aligned with body movements captured in the video
- Graphs accompanying each video identify movements that cause the most stress

Receive a customized recommendation from your Risk Engineering consultant

- Our ergonomics professional provides customized recommendations for mitigating potential employee injuries

Benefits of the TrueMotion Service

Speed

Takes ergonomic assessment from hours to minutes

Precision

Uses Artificial Intelligence (AI) to generate a detailed risk score

Simplicity

No training, added equipment, sensors or wearables are needed
